DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

Bureau of the Public Debt

MISSION

The Bureau of the Public Debt is a small organization within the Department of Treasury that handles all of Treasury's debt finance and accounting operations. To accomplish this important job, we:

- Borrow the money needed to finance Federal Government Operations and refund maturing debt by issuing and servicing Treasury bills, notes and bonds, savings bonds and other special securities;
- Account for the $5+ trillion public debt;
- Regulate the government securities market;
- Manage marketable, savings bond and special securities programs; and
- Provide direct customer service to owners of Treasury securities.

LOCATION

Most of our employees are located in our operations center in Parkersburg, West Virginia. Parkersburg sits along the eastern bank of the Ohio River. This metropolitan area of 150,000, offers:

- A choice of city, suburban, and rural lifestyles;
- Affordable housing, a reasonable cost of living, excellent schools, low crime rate, and a strong commercial base;
- Opportunities for outdoor recreational activities year-round.

Public Debt also has offices in Washington, DC and a number of other cities across the country.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

We are always looking for highly qualified people, who are interested in public service, to meet our staffing needs.

We offer challenging careers in a wide variety of occupations, such as information technology, finance, accounting, management and marketing.

Public Debt's most important resource is its employees, who bring their creativity and dedication to the workplace every day. We have high expectations of all of our staff and recognize the value of their contributions. We are committed to recruiting and retaining highly qualified people who reflect our country's diversity.

Public Debt is proud of being an Equal Opportunity

Employer. Your qualifications are considered without regard to race or national origin, religion, sex, age, lawful political affiliation, marital status, or physical handicap (some jobs do have specific physical requirements).
